

Poloos Council

Community Charter & Principles

1. One holder, one vote

Every wallet that meets the eligibility requirements casts exactly one vote per item, no matter how many Poloos it holds. Balance determines whether you may vote — never how much your vote counts. This principle is not subject to amendment by proposal.

2. Eligibility

Voting requires (a) a connected Solana wallet, (b) a verified on-chain Poloos balance at or above the published minimum, and (c) a minimum holding period before a newly seen wallet becomes eligible. Eligibility is checked against public chain data; no signature is stored and no funds ever move through this application.

3. Deliberation before decision

Items open for a fixed period so members can read, discuss, and reconsider. Community Polls gauge sentiment, Dispute Cases resolve conflicts between members, and Governance Proposals set direction for the Council itself.

4. Nothing is automated into the world

Petitions to external organisations, agencies, or representatives are never dispatched automatically. A human reviewer must approve every dispatch, and each one is recorded in the public transparency log with recipients, dates, and any response received.

5. Non-binding by design

Outcomes represent the opinion of participating verified holders. They are not legally binding, do not constitute an official constituent survey, and place no obligation on any recipient to respond. Every petition states this plainly on its face.

6. Advisory signals stay advisory

Signal Markets use non-monetary points that cannot be purchased, traded, withdrawn, or redeemed for anything of value. They appear only on tokenomics and financial proposals, always clearly separated from the vote, and are never blended into or substituted for the tally.

7. Participation is not a scoreboard

Badges, streaks, and accuracy stats are informational. They confer no extra voting weight, no platform privileges, and no rewards. The Council does not rank members against one another by volume.

8. Conduct

Argue with the proposal, not the person. No harassment, doxxing, impersonation, or coordinated manipulation. Members may flag content; repeated flags hide a post pending human review. Moderation actions are logged.

9. Transparency and record

Tallies, verified-voter counts, dispatched petitions, and moderation actions are part of the public record. Where something must remain private, the Council states that it exists and why it is withheld.

10. Amendment

This charter may be amended through a Governance Proposal that reaches the published threshold, with the standing exception of Principle 1, which is foundational.

Poloos Council is a community deliberation platform. Nothing in this charter constitutes legal, financial, or investment advice, and no part of the platform involves real-money wagering or payouts.
